As General gra-Funsion rode up the street the applause he received was wonderful. Behind him ame the regiment on its way from the Tartar to the Presidio. It, too, took the throng by storm. It was the most enthusinstic demonstration I ever witnessed. During my stay in Frisco the Twentieth was the center of atraction and it will remain so until mustered out.

Twentieth such an ovation, what shall we expect when it comes home." Kansas people will simply go wild over it. It is unfortunate that there are some at home who are trying by word and pen to detract from the glory of the regiment."
"What about the threatened row among the officers when they return home?" was

"I did not talk with Colonel Little while I was there," replied the governor, refrained from doing so not because I had any ili will toward him, but because I never want it charged that I went out there to line up the regiment for anybody. Colonel Little, however, so I am informed, is not talking much.

'As to Funston's plans for the future? has none yet. I told him that the people of Kansas thought a great deal of alm, and would probably give him any thing he wanted. He said he was gird to know that he stood well at home, but he was not seeking office. I believe he would prefer remaining in the army for awhile

"Wed, I am in favor of anything the boys want. This is a receitlen for them. The officials and people here should simply The officials and people here should simply let the heroes have their say. If they want to come through the state in daylight why, I am heartily in favor of it. I believe it would be a great thing. I have arranged with the government to have all the guns and equipment brought along with the regiment, so that the people can see the boys as soldiers and not as citizens. After the reception here, the guns and equipment will be sent to a government arsenal. I have guaranteed the safe return of the stuff.

"The Kansas boys made a wonderful record in the Philippines," added the governor. "No other regiment touched them. Just think of it! Ten of them are to get special medals for bravery and heroic deeds done. These medals will not be given on hearsny evidence. General MacArthur, who personally saw the boys perform has recommended it. Is a great compliment. The two privates to get medals are White and Trembley, who swam the fiver.

"It was the linest trip I ever had in my life," said Trensurer Grimes. "As the boys marched through the streats of Frisco they got a great evation. It made one glad that he was a Kansan. The officials in Frisco, both army and civil, did not leave a thing undone to make our stay a pleasant one. General Shafter is one of the most hospitable men i ever met. He showed uservery courtesy. He seemed as proud of the Kansan troms as we did.

"I had several long chars with General Function," he went on, "and while he did not say that he would enter politics, I inferred that he would enter politics, I farefred that he would enter politics, I farefred that he would enter politics, I farefred that he would enter politics, I had for governor. He appreciates the kind treatment Governor Stanley accorded him in the matter of promotions, and he will stand by the gavernor for anything he wants. Neither will be make a scramble for office. If it comes to him by acclaimation, he will take it. Ed Little is not talking any I feel certain, though that when he gets home he will open up.

"The boys, or at least 39 per cent of them, are in favor of holding the Philipphase. They don't like to fight for something and them after getting it, turn it back to the enemy. Besides, they all say that for commercial reasons the United States should hold the islands."

Waterman's famous cartoon of Treasurer Grimes, getten out during the 3s cannoting, traveled to the other side of the globe. The Kansas soldiers all saw it. When they learned that Grimes was out in a tug to meet them the night of their arrival, they gave him three cheers. When Grimes met General Function, a mighal to see you."

"But I did not suppose you knew me, responded Grimes."

"Yes, we all know you from that cartoon, and we are all for you for re-election."
